Top 6 reasons

to do the Masters in Management Information Systems @ISEG Lisbon

02.

Information systems and technologies are an essential factor in the competitiveness and success of organisations. Having the skills to understand these resources and know how to manage them is fundamental.

03.

The course aims to develop a culture of high exigencies, rigour and quality, becoming a differentiating factor and creating and consolidating knowledge.

04.

Students can optionally participate in an SAP ERP induction programme, which will take place at the University of Saarbrücken, in Germany, as well as visit SAP and some of its partners, on a one-week trip to the city of Saarbrücken (subject to travel restrictions conditions).

06.

The professors are experienced and have a close link between the academic view and the business reality.

Maria Constança Portalete
Alumna Masters in Management Information Systems

In order to improve my knowledge about Information Systems and the importance of managing them effectively in organizations, I decided to choose a Master in MIS at ISEG. There were no doubts that ISEG would be able to provide me with the necessary knowledge for a promising future. In my Masters Final Work, I had the opportunity to carry out a project in ISEG that contributed to the improvement of a Business Intelligence tool developed within the scope of the UN Sustainable Development Goals. This experience was one of the most enriching of my academic career, and that could only be provided by a well-structured and challenging Masters programme.

01.

The MGSI's main objectives are training with high technical competence in planning information systems: selection of tools to be used and modules to be developed; management of the development process; implementation and integration; and establishment of security policies.

05.

Most students manage to get a job placement in the market before finishing the course, and key institutions in the Portuguese economy guarantee this employability.
